The News from Maine.

Now that the fight is over in Maine the Democracy everywhere are folding their banners in defeat. After all their brag and bluster, and their superhuman efforts, they seem to have come out of the struggle more terribly worsted than was the case with them in Vermont. A dispatch to the Pittsburgh Gazette from Senator Blaine sets forth the general result. He says: "We have won a magnificent victory, which includes the carrying of all the Congressional districts, and, possibly, every county in the State." So goes the tide against Democracy. We were told before Vermont spoke, that the cantrics there had been especially vigorous on the part of Tilden's followers, and as that State had gone solidly for him at St. Louis, all was harmonious in Democratic ranks, and the Republican majority would be whittled down to nothing. Yet the result proved just the reverse. There regarding Maine it was asserted that "Jim Blaine" was not so popular as he had been and that the Republican majority would fall below the standard. The answer is a complete Republican victory. The auguries are ominous for Democracy; they seem to presage a defeat more overwhelming and disastrous than has yet been recorded in the party's history. Vermont and Maine and glorious victory. Push on the column.

Florida Straws.

A gentleman writing to a friend in this city from "Aiken, South Carolina," gives a graphic account of the process of subdividing the South for Tilden and Hendricks. In speaking of the Hamburg affair, or rather of the arrest of those who participated in the massacre, he says: "Last week I saw eighty-three of the men engaged in that massacre come into Aiken to go through the farce of giving bonds for their appearance at some future time, in the sum of $1,000 each. If you could have seen this large company you would have realized what a hideous mockery is the pretense of carrying out the terms of the Civil Rights bill. This cavalcade of civilizers were all on horseback and heavily armed. I heard one of these men boasting that it had cost him one hundred and fifty dollars for the arms and ammunition he had in his house. These men as I have said gave bonds, but they were easy to see in their defiant bravado that with them the whole thing was a con game without a particle of serious result to follow in the future. They know no law but that of over-shadowing force, and they know that without the aid of the general government Gov. Chamberlain is as powerless to bring them to justice as were the unarmed Hamburg victims of their violence to defend themselves." He gives another striking example of how heartily the results of the war are concurred in by the Southern leaders, the men who are coming to the front of the Democratic party under the nominal leadership of Tilden and Hendricks. He says: "A few days since, Edgfield, the colored Republicans were marching in procession to a grove where they were to be addressed, when they were overtaken by some 750 white men on horseback, all armed to the teeth, who ordered them to halt, which they did. The white men then passed on to the grove and broke down the platform and destroyed the seats. Of course the darkies took the hint—there was no meeting."

These are facts, and are but a drop in the bucket of daily occurrences which transpire in this portion of the Democratic heritage of a solid South."

These are but the experience of every man who roams in the South—the unvarnished evidence that is forced upon him of the utter insincerity of all professions by the Southern leaders that their people acquiesce in the results of the war; of their willingness to accord to the freedman the enjoyment of the civil rights guaranteed to him by the Constitution.

Add to these the rebel attack upon a Hayes and Wheeler meeting in Baltimore, and you have the spirit which is rampant in the Democratic party; you have a measure of the atrocities that will characterize Rebel Democratic rule in the Southern States when Tilden and Hendricks shall have been set up as the mere figure heads of a party, the dominant element of which is the same that turned the administration of James Buchanan into that of a drivelling idiot, sitting with folded hands while they ran the ship of State on the rocks which threatened its absolute destruction. These are the straws which show which way the Democratic wind blows, those who listen may discern the rising of the storm, may hear the click of the doom, that awaits the accomplices of the Confederate Democracy.

No Governor of New York, except William L. Marcy, has served three terms since the adoption of the present constitution in 1821. Governor Marcy's three terms were consecutive, beginning in 1832 and ending in 1839. Mr. Seward ran three times for Governor, and was defeated once. Horatio Seymour ran five times, and was beaten three times; John T. Hoffman ran three times, and was beaten once; ex-Governor Dix ran twice, and was beaten once.

The subscription fund for the relief of the widows and orphans of the men who died with Coates, started six weeks ago by Col. W. C. Church, of the Army and Navy, was over $1,200, and was received principally from officers and enlisted men in the army and navy.

Salathiel Ellis has used the Howe Sewing Machine Company to recover the Death of Henry A. Wise.

This once distinguished gentleman died at his residence in Richmond, Va., yesterday. Mr. Wise was born at Drummondton, Accomac county, Virginia, December 3, 1806, and was therefore in his seventieth year. He was educated at Washington (Pa.) College, where he graduated in 1825. He studied law at Winchester, Va., till 1828, when he went to Nashville, Tenn., married, and settled there in the practice of his profession. At the end of two years he returned to Accomac where he has resided until the last few years. He was a delegate in 1832 to the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore, where he advocated the nomination of Jackson as President, but refused to acquiesce in the nomination of Van Buren as Vice President. In 1833 the Jackson party of the eastern shore nominated him for Congress in opposition to the publication candidate, and he was elected by 410 majority. After the election his antagonist challenged him, and the result was a duel in which the challenger's right arm was fractured. In 1835 and again in 1837 he was re-elected as a supporter of the principles of Judge White and John Tyler. In 1837 he acted as the second of Mr. Graves, of Kentucky, in a duel with Mr. Gilley, of Maine, both members of Congress, in which the latter was killed; an occurrence which created deep feeling in the country, and led to much denunciation of Mr. Wise, on whom the chief prohibition of the affair rested for a time. The nomination of John Tyler by the Whigs in 1840, as a candidate for Vice President, was largely due to Mr. Wise's management; and on the accession of Mr. Tyler to the Presidency after the death of Gen. Harrison, his influence on the policy of the administration was very great, especially with reference to the bank question. In 1842 Mr. Tyler appointed him Minister to France, but the Senate rejected the nomination. He was subsequently appointed Minister to Brazil, and in that capacity resided at Rio Janeiro from May, 1844, till October, 1847. In 1850 he was a member of the convention which revised the constitution of Virginia. In December, 1854, he was nominated by the Democrats as their candidate for Governor, and immediately entered into a most animated canvass against the Know Nothings and was elected by 10,000 majority. Toward the end of Mr. Wise's term as Governor occurred the seizure of Harper's Ferry by John Brown and his followers, and the execution of John Brown at Charlestown, December 2, 1859, was one of the last acts of his administration. He was a member of the State Convention which met at Richmond, February 13, 1861, to consider the relations of Virginia to the Federal Government. After the passing of the Virginia ordinance of secession he entered heartily into the war, and was commissioned a brigadier general in the rebel army and ordered to Western Virginia. His war record was not regarded as a success, and since the war he has lived almost in retirement.

MAJOR RUSSELL KERNEY, Republican candidate for Congress in the Pittsburgh, Pa., district, has retired from the editorial management of the Commercial and will now devote his attention to the Congressional campaign, and being free from all entangling newspaper alliances he will be able to make such a personal canvass among the voters of the district as cannot but be successful. The editorial management of the Commercial, we learn, has devolved upon Mr. Wm. Anderson, late city editor, and an experienced journalist. A better selection could not have been made.

PERSONAL AND THINGS.

The Chicago Times, finding there is no chance to make anything against Hayes out of his tax returns, falls to blackguarding him for owning such poor horses and carriages.

The Turks, in violation of every rule of warfare, are using poisoned bullets. Men, though wounded slightly by them, die in horrible agony, their injuries, though apparently manageable, resisting every remedy known to surgery.

Several young men belonging to respectable families have been arrested at Martinsburg, W. Va., charged with being concerned in the robbery of a store in that place. They were held to bail in the sum of $1,000 each to answer at court. Referring to the affair, the Martinsburg Independent says: "Bad company, bad habits and midnight carousals seem to lead unerringly to a bad end."

Jarrett & Palmer's excursion steamer, the Plymouth Rock, running from New York to Rockaway, has carried an average of 2,000 persons daily since the 23rd of May, or a grand total of 206,000, of which number 28,000 were children. The receipts from fares were $103,000, and from sales at the bar, etc., $43,000. These figures give some idea of the extent to which the excursion business is carried on in New York, and of the manner in which the poor and middle classes get their summer holidays.

In Spain the heat has been so great this summer that the thermometer rose to 106 deg. in the sun at Cadiz. Tallow candles melted and became useless at night, hundreds of people dropped dead in the streets, and died laborers refused to work in the scorching sun. Owing to the recent disbandment of 200,000 soldiers, the labor market was so glutted that many workmen could only obtain about 15 cents daily for twelve hours work.

The Richmond (Va.) Enquirer, an independent Democratic journal, has suspended publication, at least for the present. The cause of the suspension is the resignation of the editor in consequence of difficulties in connection with the business department. The editor of the Enquirer was Moses P. Handy, formerly of the New York Tribune, who wrote letters to the Tribune from Ohio and Indiana during the temperance crusade, traveling in company with Dio Lewis. The moneyed man of the concern was a very young gentleman, named Scholer, who lately made himself famous by a notable "Miss Maudie Ood," of Richmond, a lady a few years his senior, and a noble belle at Saratoga and the White Sulphur Springs.

Salathiel Ellis has used the Howe Sewing Machine Company to recover the value of the bronze statue of the late Elias Howe now on the Centennial Exhibition. The company has paid but $4,000.75, and the sculptor claims the remainder of $20,000, which he alleges was promised him. The company complains of the total want of drapery about the statue, asserting that it is a serious artistic blemish; but the sculptor asserts that the only id in this respect as he was ordered, having been especially directed to produce Mr. Howe in his "store-clothes." The history of this statue has been amusing from the start. The company at first had the impudence to propose that the poor sewing woman, who have been so greatly benefited by Mr. Howe's discovery, should defray the expenses of the monument; but the poor sewing women, singular to relate, were not sufficiently grateful to do anything of the kind. The statue when completed was offered to the Central Park Commissioners, who decided that Mr. Howe was not of consequence enough to have a place in a public station, where the attention of advertising might with some show of justice be advanced. We do not think that the present notice of the suit itself will advertise the company too favorably.

The Senatorial Convention at Buckhannon—General Geo. A. Jackson, of Lewis County, Nominated by Acclamation.

At the meeting of the Republican Convention at Buckhannon, Md., on the 9th inst., the nomination of General Geo. A. Jackson, of Lewis County, for Senator, was made by acclamation. The convention was held at the Hotel of the West, and was attended by a large number of delegates from the various counties of the State. The convention was organized by the calling of the roll, and the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting. The first order of business was the nomination of a committee to prepare a report on the state of the party in the State. The committee reported that the party was in a strong position, and that they were confident of success at the coming election. The convention then proceeded to the nomination of a candidate for Senator. General Geo. A. Jackson, of Lewis County, was nominated by acclamation. The convention then adjourned until the next day.

WESTON, September 9, 1876.

I had the pleasure of attending the Senatorial Convention for the Ninth Senatorial District, at Buckhannon, on the 8th inst., and believing that the readers of the INTELLIGENCER feel a deep interest in the result of the election in this district, which, as Woodfin, of the Democrat, says, has been "demanded" in such a way as to be "demanded" beyond redemption," concluded to drop you a line in advance of the official report in respect to the result of the election. The convention assembled at the Court House in the morning, and, after a temporary organization and the appointment of committees, took a recess until one o'clock.

On re-assembling the Committee on Permanent Organization reported George A. Jackson, of Lewis County, as permanent chairman, and A. B. Clark, of Upshur County, as Secretary.

After the reports of the committees were disposed of and nominations being called for Major Fenton Howe, of Boone County, put George A. Jackson, of Lewis County, in nomination; and no other name being presented to the convention he was nominated by acclamation amid great enthusiasm, and to the utter confusion and surprise of some of the Democratic brethren, who had come expecting to see "Bumble Bee," as they expressed it, and they did see him, but it was our laugh, and the long faces of the underlings, many of whom participated in the "Philippi brand," as they doctored out of the court room was a sight long to be remembered.

Loud calls were made for Major D. T. Farnsworth, who responded in a speech over an hour in length, in which he presented the record of Major Mathews, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and of the party he represented, in the election of 1872. He also made a happy allusion to the great number of Democrats who were "hanging their heads" on the good, strong and substantial Republican gate-post.

Major Teeters, of Barbour County, and Dr. J. S. Russell, of Harrison County, made short and pithy speeches, which were well received and greeted with frequent applause.

At the conclusion of the speaking, about 5 o'clock, the chairman, after congratulating the convention on the successful result of the day, and in a pleasant and harmonious manner in which the business before them was disposed of, and bespoke for their candidate an assured victory in October declared the convention adjourned.

It was a regular field day for the Republicans, and the hearts of all the voters of the district are in the Republican camp. The result of the election was a triumph for the Republican party, and a defeat for the Democratic party. The Republican party has gained a Senator, and the Democratic party has lost a Senator. The result of the election was a triumph for the Republican party, and a defeat for the Democratic party. The Republican party has gained a Senator, and the Democratic party has lost a Senator.

Here to-night the enthusiasm is unbounded, and on every side are heard shouts for Goff, Hayes and Wheeler, and Jackson.

The nomination of our esteemed comrade, General A. Jackson, seems to give general satisfaction to the people, and you can get old Lewis down for 500 majority for him in October.

The Western band serenaded General Jackson to-night, in response to his remarks, and a few pleasant remarks and promises to let them hear a good report from him hereafter.

The band, followed by a large crowd, then proceeded to the office of the Western Democrat, and loud calls being made for Wheeler, Hayes and Jackson, the band played a march in which he told the people that, while he had been assailed on all sides in consequence of having severed his connection with the political party he had recently been associated with, yet he felt conscious of being doing nothing but his duty to himself and his country, and had received no reward, nor did he expect any reward that which would be rendered by the verdict of his people at the polls in October.

Amidst loud cheering our genial and talented young friend, from Clinton County, Robert F. Ewing, was called on, and in a ten minutes speech, full of the true spirit to the support of Goff and the whole ticket and National, and keep our country in the hands of its friends.

Lewis County is awake to her true interests and must not be counted as among the "doubtful," but you can get us down for a handsome majority on the side of the great Republican party who do not only preach but practice true reform.

REPORTER.

Countable John J. Cooper, of the Sixth Ward, an intelligent and influential Democrat, heard Matthews' speech last night. Cooper has been a Democrat all his life, but he says that after hearing Matthews on the 11th inst., he will cast his vote for Gov. Goff for Governor, and if Tilden forces anything like Matthews, he will vote for Hayes. He says more-over that he knows of at least a dozen other voters who have gone back on Matthews since his speech.

Two Cases Yellow Fever in New York.

New York, September 12.—Two cases of yellow fever have been reported to the Board of Health of this city. The worst was that of John Evans, a wealthy business man of Savannah, who died at a fashionable hotel in Broadway. The second being a sailor who had picked up at a sailor boarding house, of Market street. Evans came here from Savannah to escape the scourge. Prominent physicians say there is no cause for alarm, as the season is too far advanced.

Death of an Honored Citizen.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., September 12.—Hon. John Hardy, one of our oldest, wealthiest and most respected citizens, died suddenly this afternoon, of apoplexy, at his room in the Hygienic Institute. The deceased will be remembered as the founder of Purdue University, to which he donated $150,000. The time for the funeral has not yet been fixed.
